Arts Based Methods For Research With Children: Studies In Childhood And Youth is a comprehensive guide to using arts-based methods in research with children. The book provides an overview of the theoretical underpinnings of arts-based research, as well as practical guidance on how to design, implement, and analyze arts-based research projects.

Arts-based research methods are a valuable tool for researchers who want to gain a deeper understanding of children's experiences and perspectives. These methods allow children to express themselves in ways that are not always possible through traditional research methods, such as interviews or surveys.

Arts-based research methods can be used to explore a wide range of topics, including:

- Children's thoughts and feelings
- Children's experiences of the world
- Children's relationships with others
- Children's hopes and dreams

Arts-based research methods can be used in a variety of settings, including:

- Schools
- Community centers
- Hospitals
- Homes
