The Lady of the Lake

Rising from the ethereal depths of Avalon, the Lady of the Lake emerges as a mystical guardian and protector of the legendary sword, Excalibur. Her enigmatic presence, often veiled in a mist of enchantment, symbolizes the sacred bond between the Arthurian realm and the supernatural.

Morgan le Fay

Morgan le Fay, Arthur's half-sister, embodies a complex duality of light and darkness. A powerful sorceress trained by Merlin himself, her allegiances shift like the tides of magic. As the Lady of Avalon, she possesses the secrets of potions and enchantments, manipulating the threads of destiny for her own purposes.

Morgan le Fay, a force of both enchantment and manipulation.

Vivien

Vivien, the enchantress with a keen mind and beguiling charm, serves as Merlin's enigmatic pupil. Her insatiable thirst for knowledge drives her to unravel the secrets of his magic, ultimately leading to his downfall. Through Vivien's treacherous deception, Merlin's wisdom becomes trapped within the depths of the forest of Broceliande.

The Enchantments of Avalon

The Witch Queens' connection to the mystical island of Avalon, a realm of eternal youth and healing, weaves a tapestry of magic throughout the Arthurian tapestry. Avalon's enchanted groves, whispering trees, and flowing fountains serve as a sanctuary for those seeking refuge or divine inspiration.
