In this book, a retired military commander who served in the South African Defence Force during the war provides a firsthand account of the conflict. He offers a unique perspective on the war, drawing on his own experiences and observations. He also provides insights into the motivations of the different actors involved in the conflict, and he assesses the impact of the war on the region.

This book is a valuable resource for anyone who is interested in the history of southern Africa, or in the history of war. It is also a fascinating and informative read for anyone who is interested in the human experience of war.
