

You're Leaving When? Adventures in Downward Mobility

In this candid and humorous memoir, author Sarah Lawrence recounts her decision to leave her high-paying job in New York City to travel the world and live off the grid. With refreshing honesty, she shares her experiences of adjusting to a life of reduced means, from learning to live in a van to cooking over a campfire. Along the way, she encounters a cast of colorful characters, from fellow travelers to locals, and learns valuable lessons about herself and the meaning of happiness.

Lawrence's writing is witty and self-deprecating, and she has a knack for finding humor in even the most challenging situations. She describes her experiences with disarming candor, and her journey of self-discovery is both inspiring and relatable. You're Leaving When? is a must-read for anyone who has ever dreamed of leaving it all behind and living a more fulfilling life.

Excerpt from *You're Leaving When?

"I was sitting in my cubicle, staring at my computer screen, when the email arrived. It was from my boss, and it said, 'We need to talk.' My heart sank. I had been with the company for five years, and I had always been a top performer. But lately, I had been feeling restless. I was tired of the long hours, the constant pressure, and the lack of fulfillment. I knew that I needed a change, but I didn't know what that change would be."

"I went to my boss's office, and he told me that the company was downsizing and that my position was being eliminated. I was shocked and devastated. I had never been fired before, and I didn't know what I was going to do."

"I went home and cried. I didn't know what I was going to do. I had a mortgage to pay, and I didn't have any savings. I felt like a failure."

"But then, something inside me snapped. I realized that this was an opportunity for me to finally make a change. I had always dreamed of traveling the world and living off the grid. But I had always been too afraid to take the leap."

"So I decided to do it. I sold my apartment, bought a van, and hit the road. I didn't know where I was going or how I was going to make a living. But I knew that I had to follow my dream."
